Schwarze Margarete

Margareta, die Schwester oder Tochter des Fürsten Swantepolk von Hinterpommern, verlebte ihre jung-fräulichen Jahre auf Schloß Belgard (an der Leba) und vermählte sich dann mit dem König Christoph I. von Dänemark (1252—1259). In Dänemark starb sie im Jahre 1283.

Sie war eine leidenschaftliche Liebhaberin der Jagd. Während Fürst Swantepolk außer Landes die Feinde bekämpfte, jagte sie, mit einem schwarzen Gewande bekleidet und auf einem Schimmel reitend, im Gebiet ihrer „Weißen Burg“ auf Hasen und Rehe und andere jagdbare Tiere.

Auf den Höhen nach dem Lebabruch zu, unweit des Dorfes Krampe, hat sie ihr Jagdschloß, dessen Umwallung noch jetzt erkennbar ist, die durch ihre Leidenschaft auch die Sonn- und Feiertage entweiht und einmal sogar auf ein Bild der Jung-frau Maria, das an einer Wegkreuzung aufgestellt war, geschossen haben. Für solchen Frevel wurde sie hart bestraft: Sie muß jahraus und jahrein, bis in alle Ewigkeit hinein sich als Jägerin betätigen. Und so er-scheint sie noch jetzt zuweilen in der Gegend ihrer alten Heimat als Spuk-gestalt und bereitet dem nächtlichen Wanderer Furcht und Schrecken. Im Volksmunde heißt sie die Schwarze Jägerin oder die Schwarze Margarete.

Im Tale des Simelbaches, der bei Krampe entspringt und in die Leba mündet, kann man in der Mitter-nachtsstunde des Margaretentages (13. Juli) ihr klägliches Wimmern hö-schleierte Frau oder auch als wilde Jägerin mit lautem Jagdgerölle erschiene.

Auch in Schleswig-Holstein lebt ihr Andenken fort. Hier wird sie als Swarte Greet, als rossetummelnde
Margaret oder auch als Margareta Springpferd in zahlreichen Sagen er-wähnt. Sie soll das Dannewerk oder wenigstens einen Teil desselben, den sogenannten Margaretewall, errichtet haben und zeigt sich bald hier, bald dort als nächtliche Jägerin mit zahlreichem Jagdgerölle.

Unsere Leser schreiben Juden aus Schneide- mühl

Aus einem Leserbrief im „Reconstruction“ New York, ersehe ich, daß über den Verbleib der Juden aus Schneidemühl zum Teil recht wider-spruchsvolle Ansichten herrschen. Sie sollen 1940 nach Głowno deportiert, aber nach kurzer Zeit nach Deutschland zurückgebracht worden sein. An-dererseits sollen sie in Radjken-dorf bei Beeskow interniert und später endgültig deportiert worden sein.
Exakte Berichte liegen offenbar nicht vor. Welcher Pommer kann ihnen Auskunft geben? Porto wird ersetzt.
Ich bedanke mich auch für jeden ge-ringsten Hinweis.

Sehr geehrter Herr Weber:

Uns wurde von Freunden die Pommersche Zeitung vom
27. März 1965 mit Ihrer Anfrage betreffend die Juden aus Schneidemühl zugesandt.

Nach Auskunft von sehr zuverlässiger Quelle moch-ten wir Ihnen mitteilen, dass tatsächlich die Juden aus Schneidemühl nach Radinkendorf gebracht worden sind. Einigen gelang es noch, von dort aus auszuwandern.
Die Anderen wurden von dort aus deportiert.

In der Hoffnung, Ihnen mit dieser Auskunft gedient zu haben,

Hochachtungsvoll

The Jewish Cemetery of SCHNEIDEMÜHL

The following is part of my own research into the history of the Jews of Schneidemühl, the ancestral town of the Simonstein family, my late mother's forebears.

SCHNEIDEMÜHL (known as the town PIŁA before the first partition of Poland in 1772, then having only 1393 inhabitants¹) is situated in the area that became the 'Großherzogthum Posen' (Grand Duchy of Posen). In time this area was to become Prussia's most Jewish province. (Documentary traces of a Jewish community are found in the area around Schneidemühl as early as 1617²). In 1851 the town rose in importance with the building of the Ostbahn, the Berlin-Königsberg railways. By 1905 Schneidemühl had a Jewish population of 800, 3.6% of a population of 22,000. In 1919, after the Versailles Treaty, Schneidemühl remained in German hands and became part of Grenzmark Posen-Westpreussen but by 1925 the Jewish population of Schneidemühl had shrunk to 586, to less than 2% of a population of 37,500³. In February 1945, as a garrison town, Schneidemühl was 75% destroyed. After WW II the town once again became part of Poland and known as Piła in Poznan province.

Three locales in and around the town are known to have had Jewish burials.

To date no records have been found of the first and oldest Jewish cemetery of Schneidemühl.

During the war years 1914-1918 Jewish Russian prisoners of war who died in the local prison camp were buried on the outskirts of the town. A monument erected in their memory was destroyed by the Nazis during their regime.

The second and main Jewish cemetery of Schneidemühl, most probably established in the 1850s and used for burials until 1942, was located in the centre of the town. The cemetery was bordered by the Küddow Promenade and Karlsgasse near the Jewish quarter that had been laid out in the 17th century. The entrance to the cemetery was on Karlsgasse. During the Nazi period the Gestapo headquarters were located virtually next to the cemetery, - a reason, given by surviving relatives, for the apparent destruction of this necropolis by the Nazis in 1939. (See also N.B. below.)

My cousin Martin Rosenberg, as former head of the Chevra Kadisha of Schneidemühl, immigrated to Santiago, Chile in 1938, taking with him a handwritten booklet which he had kept, containing entries of over 500 names, complete with Hebrew death dates pertaining to the second Jewish cemetery of Schneidemühl, covering the period 1854-1932.

The order of entering the burials in the original handwritten booklet was done by field, then by month, name, day and year of the Hebrew calendar.

I have copied the original booklet and, in an effort to create an alphabetical master list, I computerized the contents of the booklet, then sorted by dates (Hebrew & Gregorian) and fields.

However, while comparing the original list against the large number of civil death records of Schneidemühl (part of a photocopied collection of extracted Civil BMD records of Jews of Schneidemühl³ in my possession) I estimated that the entries in the booklet account only for 25% of all Jews buried in Schneidemühl for the given period. I also found numerous discrepancies between the actual data of the salvaged booklet and those of the official civil records.

I then endeavored to enhance the computerized list by:

- correcting the spelling of some surnames,
- adding numerous maiden names,
- adding some dates of death, as well as correcting other dates,
- adding all (converted Hebrew) dates of the Gregorian calendar, including days of the week.

Some remaining minor discrepancies between the Hebrew dates and the civil BMD dates of the Gregorian calendar may be due to the differences between the recorded times of death, i.e. before or after sunset.

² Aus der Vergangenheit & Gegenwart der Juden und der jüd. Gemeinden in den Posener Landen; Dr. A. Heppner & J. Herzberg; 1909

³ The original Civil BMD records of Schneidemühl, 1874-1945, were salvaged during WW II and are today located at the Geheimes Staatsarchiv, Preussischer Kulturbesitz, in Berlin - Dahlem, Archivstr. 12/14, Germany.

N.B. Accounts by relatives who have visited Piła during the past 30 years mention that after WW II a municipal building has been erected by the Polish authorities on the site of the second, main Jewish cemetery of Schneidemühl which had apparently been destroyed by the Germans in 1939... According to their reports no traces of the cemetery remain today.

However, conflicting with the above, after a survey of historic Jewish monuments commissioned in 1991 by the World Monument Fund⁴, in which approximately 500 Jewish cemeteries in Poland were examined, a report states that of the two still recognizable Jewish cemeteries in the Polish town of Piła, one necropolis is being preserved as a monument, with more than 21 gravestones extant in 1991... The report does not give the locale of the cemetery though.

By December 1991, in keeping with Poland's revised historic preservation law after the fall of Communism, 154 Jewish cemetery sites in Poland had been recognized as monuments, listed in Monument Register Records maintained in each Voivodship.
